Dublin Clinical Hospitals Standing Committee
Hayes, Richard Atkinson, 1850-1940

Description:

The papers of the Dublin Clinical Hospitals Standing Committee collected by Richard Hayes, secretary of the committee from 1881 to 1932. The majority of the material is a series of correspondence files covering issues relating to the administration of hospital training for medical students, and subjects to be discussed by the Committee. There is also a small collection of accounts and agreements made by the constituent hospitals of the committee, and the committee's minute book.

Arrangement:

Material has been divided into five sections by record type; Fee Agreement; Correspondence; Accounts; Memorandums of Agreements and Minute Books.

Administrative History:

The Dublin Clinical Hospitals Standing Committee originated in a meeting held at the Royal College of Physicians in Ireland in 1877 when ten Dublin hospitals (Adelaide Hospital, City of Dublin Hospital, Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital, Jervis Street Hospital, Mater Misericordiae Hospital, Meath Hospital, Mercer's Hospital, the House of Industry Hospitals, Dr Steeven's Hospital and St. Vincent's Hospital) agreed to a standard fee for students and apprentices in hospitals. Following on for this meeting a committee was formed in 1880 to agree united action on various topics, including fees, the type of courses to be given and how hospitals could advertise. The committee membership expanded over time with the inclusion of the Rotunda Hospital and National Maternity Hospital.

The Committee could only meet if the medical board of one of the ten constituent hospital passed a resolution asking for a meeting to be called to discuss a specific issue. Once a resolution has been made by the Committee the medical boards of the constituent hospitals had to adopt the resolution, which would only come into force if adopted by a majority of the medical boards. The Committee's business was managed by an appointed secretary, the first secretary was Christopher John Nixon, on his retirement in 1881 he was replaced by Richard Hayes who remained in the post until 1932.

Acquisition:

The correspondence, collected by Richard Hayes during his time as secretary, was given into the safe keeping of the Registrar of the Royal College of Physicians in Ireland in 1932, as the College already held the agreements signed by the Committee. At the same time the minute books of the Committee were also deposited with the College.
