

RCPI eJournal Club Submission Criteria

- The article must have been published within the three years prior to the competition's commencement e.g. for the 2019/20 competition, the article must be published, online or in paper, whichever is the latest, after 1 January 2016.
- The review should be solely the Trainee's own work. Submissions by groups are not permitted.
- The review should include key learning points for practice and/or a reflection on how it has changed the trainee's practice.
- The article should have a general interest, ideally targeted at the Basic Specialist Training stage, and therefore not be overly subspecialised.
- Articles must be relevant to the specialty of General Internal Medicine in the first year of the eJournal Club.
- The suitability of articles will be judged by their applicability to medical practice in the first instance.
- Reviews will be assessed for plagiarism by reviewers.
- The submissions must conform to the template provided.
